Born March 27, 1956, Mexico City, Mexico

Martin Torres is a graduate of International Relations from El Colegio de México, the finest Social Studies academic institution in Latin America, and holds an M.A. Degree in the same discipline from the University of Virginia, USA.

He was Consul for Media Affairs at the Consulate General of Mexico in Los Angeles during the NAFTA negotiations, where he performed as the Mexican Government spokesperson in this key region of the United States. Previously he served as Secretary for Economic and Cooperation Affairs at the Embassy of Mexico in Guatemala. His first position in the Mexican Government was as Specialized Analyst at the Director Generalship of Energy, where among other things he participated in the edition of the monthly bulletin Energéticos.

Torres was also a member of the Editorial Board and Editorial Coordinator of the journal of political analysis Examen, and performed as supervising publisher of the specialized quarterly edited by Mexico Diplomatic Academy, Revista Mexicana de Política Exterior.

In the Mexican Foreign Service—which he joined as Career Diplomat in 1997—he served for seven years as Head Consul at the Consulate of Mexico in Orlando, a representation which he had the responsibility of opening. Immediately thereafter he was appointed Head Consul at the Mexican Consulate in Salt Lake City, from where he covered a Consular Jurisdiction encompassing the US States of Utah, Idaho, Montana and Western Wyoming. Upon his return to Mexico he performed for five years as Deputy Director General at the Diplomatic Academy of Mexico's Foreign Ministry's, the Matías Romero Institute. From 2008 to 2012 he was assigned to the Embassy of Mexico in the Czech Republic, where he served as Head of the Economic and Bilateral Cooperation Affairs Section and as Deputy Chief of Mission.

In September 2012 he was commissioned to head the Embassy of Mexico in Iran as Chargé d' Affaires. From there he moved in June 2014 to Doha, Qatar, as he was given the mission to open a new Diplomatic Representation of Mexico in that country. He headed
